I knew exactly what was going on in that conversation Thursday, but I myself was too tired to try and help you revisualize the conversation in the moment...which is why I just wanted to move on for that day. I am not sure that I want to play the conversation back because it might be painful, but we should talk about a second take at it.

Yes, I'm sorry, I went into Mother Bear mode. I only do that when I object to the assumptions and am tired. So, we probably should play that conversation back at some point with me in normal mode so we can parse the assumptions and make sure we're starting from the same place with where CRFLO is.

So I am glad I asked for the emails because on their face they don't show any language of concern or tone or anything of that nature, so now I know that I need to better understand why ECR CO feels that way.

I'm sending it to you, though, for a different purpose. Following up on the conversation last night about roles between the two offices, I think this email chain is an interesting example of how the two offices interact and it would be good if both of us read it and discuss what we think about the interaction between the two halves of our office. Again, not for substance or politeness, but rather for what it says about the rolls each understands they have.

Thanks, Kevin

I will take another look through the report at what you and Adam have raised. We shared the questions with Region 9 and they did not provide any additional feedback.
